Congressional News.

In the Senate on Monday the credentials of John. S. Hager, elected Senator from California to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Casserly, were presented and Mr. Hager was sworn in.

Mr. Ferry presented a petition asking that the balance of the Chinese indemnity fund be applied to the education of the Chinese in the Pacific States. Referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

The Bankrupt Bill was discussed, the pending amendment being that of Mr. Thurman to abolish the office of Register in Bankruptcy, and authorizing the District Court to dispose of all suits in bankruptcy, and to appoint Master Commissioners, when necessary, to perform the duties of Registers. Mr. Thurman, advocating the adoption of the amendment, said its effect would be greatly to decrease the cost in bankruptcy cases. Mr. Frelinghuysen said he did not agree with Senator Thurman, that the costs would be decreased. If the courts had the settlement of cases exclusively persons would have to appear by counsel, whereas counsel need not be employed to appear before registers. Again, persons would not be compelled to travel so far to reach a register as they would to reach a district judge, as registers were in every Congressional District.

In the House of Representatives, Mr. Dawes introduced a bill to reduce the rate of letter postage to two cents.

A bill introduced by Representative Platt of New York, fixes the compensation of the postmasters named at the following places, viz: At New York, $10,000; Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, at $8,000 each, and Brooklyn, Baltimore and Cincinnati, $6,000; provides that such salaries shall be paid from moneys received at the post-offices, from box rents, sales of postage stamps, and other sources in excess of the expenditures allowed and made thereat for rent, clerk hire, fuel, lights, furniture, stationery, printing, and the necessary incidentals.

The House passed a special bill appropriating $20,000 to remove the bar formed at the entrance to Buffalo Harbor.

Mr. Dawes offered a concurrent resolution that when the two Houses of Congress adjourn on the 15th of May, that the presiding officers shall declare their Houses respectively adjourned sine die. An acrimonious discussion followed between Messrs. Beck, Dawes and others. The resolution was finally referred to the Committee of Ways and Means.

A Bloomfielder Abroad.

MAY FORT, FLA., FEB. 2, 1874.—FRIEND A.:—I suppose you are having Winter in earnest by this time, with, perhaps good sleighing. We are enjoying the shade of orange groves, luxuriating in all the pleasures afforded by this climate at this season of the year. The scenery is both romantic and sublime. There old and beautiful palmettos are a splendid sight to behold, and I never weary of looking at them. The reverse may be said of the plantations which I have visited. The houses in ruins, the land uncultivated, growing up with young palms, prickly-pears, brush, etc., while the negroes are running around loose, unkempt and uncared for except by the alligators who now and then gobble up a specimen of that down-trodden race. And in this connection, I will "a tale unfold."

A little more than a week ago I shot an alligator off the wharf which was the last seen of him until, yesterday, the carcase was discovered by some of the race aforesaid who claimed the whole as salvage, not even allowing me the teeth to take home as trophies. While witnessing the operation of skinning and cutting up, all hands were horrified at finding the remains of a young negro apparently ten or twelve years old whom the varmint had entrapped with his enormous jaws some time previous to his death. Whether the youthful darkey had been missed by his "fond parients" I have yet to learn. An inquest was held, the verdict of which I am at the present moment in ignorance. It will doubtless be "died of too much alligator." I am told that this kind of "varmint" possess a strong affinity for young negroes.

There is plenty of other kinds of game in this vicinity, and with duck shooting and rambling on the beach or through the woods, now and then varying the routine by having a little fun with the natives, attending fandangos, etc., time passes away pleasantly and I shall really regret leaving this luxurious and lazy clime for that New Jersey town of mud and mosquitoes. And such is life, at least a part of mine. But I must stop. A native looms up in the distance with oranges to sell; and now for a feast of the good things. By the way, people here eat only one half of the luscious fruit, the remainder or shady side of the orange being rejected. Truly yours,

"Doc."

"Doc." will have to come on and make an affidavit before the 'Squire in regard to one or two of his allegations before his friends will believe all his "experience."

Woman's Rights.

MR. EDITOR:

I enclose you a nonsensical speech which has caused considerable merriment among a small private circle. You may perhaps think it worth printing in your live little paper for the amusement of your readers.

A CONSTANT READER.

Ladies and Gemmen:—De subject dat I hab chosen to redress you upon dis ebening am one dat in its far reaching confluence of circumstances, extends to de ultimate conniptions of de diagonal hemispheres ob de antiquated unicorn. Fustly—we am to consider what am de rights which am delegated to de female sect, in de constitution government ob de land in which we exist. Does de constitution, as interrupted by de latter day saints and sinners, guarantee de right of franchisement to woman at de present day? I will endeavor to prove to you, my benighted hearers, dat such am de facts in de case. In de eleventeen hundred and leventy-ninth chapter of Under-de-bridge's dictionary we find de following quotations, which am conclusibe evidence of de facts as submitted to your interlectual understandings. According to de immortal Thomas Henry Jefferson's version ob de constitutional climaxes, we find dat de elementary delegated system of connubal jurisprudence, taken in conjunctionality wid de hifalutin developements of extraneous and judicious philosophy, combined with de divergent divertability ob de various methods and systeems ob conjugal mathematics, will lead us to de conclusion that we can rely spontaneously on de recognized and indelible principles ob de habeas corpus.

Secondly and thirdly.—My long-heeled friends, we will consider de question in its more obtuse aspects: Has de woman a better right to vote than de men? De great Poet, William Spokesheare, have expressed dis idea in dem beautiful lines beginning:

"De man hab done brave deeds,
And some hab done dem well;
But de woman hab done dem braver,
As I'm a gwine to tell.

To corroborate dese sentiments, we call your detention to the geelorious words uttered by dat great hero, Christopher Columbus, in his address to the students of Yell College on Long Island last New Year's day, at de Fourth of July celibration. Dem words, as near as de speaker can disremember, were dese: Ine, hoc, morus multicaulis, a mensa et thoro, ruta baga centum. Erin go anum, e pluribus bragh, wee gates! nix for stay. Considerandi considerando, considerandum? Yang-ste-ki-ang, muligrab, dictum, sylabus. Flat justitia! Dese expressions, my belubed hearers, we think hab proved to your sassifaction de soundness ob de doctrines we hab been nunciating. (If dem boys in de back seats don't deduct demselves in a more consistory manner I shall be under de painful and necessity ob illustrifying to dem what kind of leather de speaker's number twelves is made of.)

Fourthly and nextly. My brudders and sisters, de question dat now arises is what am de best means to be deployed to bring about de great deserderatum, in regard to securing to our down trodden sisters de right to deposit dere votes in de ballot box? Dese am de days when great rebolutions am takin' place in all de matters what pertain to de state and de individual. De Legumslator am now in session, and all you hab to do is to git up a little bill and make de application to gub yourselves de right to vote. Maybe when dey get through wid de ocal option bill for Bloomfield, and when dey hab passed anoder bill to gib the Town Committee more power to make some more of dem good roads like de one on de oder side ob de canal on Mumblegomery street, dey will hab time to tend to your case; but each one ob you must hab a bill of your own, as dat is de fashion dese times.

But dis am digressin' from de subject under desideration. What am wanted to make de womans rights question a great success am all to be united under one banner, and fight de ting through on dis line if it takes all winter, and finally when de triumphant hosts ob de lumanacious constellation ob de down trodden members of de feminine sect take de boid stand for der constitutional rights ob equality wid de lords ob creation, den we'll see de mileninum ob de universal abolition ob de normal condition ob de inhabitants ob de consequential universe.

Fifthly and sixthly and lastly. My dear obfusticated wooley-heads, the final consequences ob de action to be taken in dis yer deportant matter am now to be desidered. To illustrify de subject from dis standpoint we would ax your attention to de fundamental qualifications ob de woman as compared wid de male sect in de exercise ob de elecshun franchize. What am de authorities on dis matter? in de index to Josh Billings, or any other man's almanac, we find de facts am, when de conclusibe signonifications comprised in de latetudeinarian combustibilities are compared wid de cantankerous bobolitions found in de regentiferous defresions ob de ancient hyrogliphical traditions, de only ground we hab left to depose dis measure is dat de deflux of de manifestoes comprised in de referential egotistics will lead us with one decord to declaim wid de great reformer: "Ne plus ultra, pultum in marvo, sine qua non, de la omnibus, nix cum speel. Parle vovs Francais, skit-e-ka-dink-a-bim—shoo-fly!
